Woman, Son Missing in Light Plane

Unreported on Hop From Watson Lake To Fort Nelson

RCAP aircraft and pararescue squads awaited favorable weather today before starting a search for a missing Stinson plane carrying a woman and her son.

The missing light plane was piloted by a Mrs. Lintner, who is said to have been flying from Watson Lake, Alaska, to the United States.

The aircraft failed to arrive at Fort Nelson where it was scheduled to land from Watson Lake at 8:30 a.m. Monday.

The Stinson plane was last sighted flying over Smith River, near Summit Lake about half-way between Watson Lake and Fort Nelson.

Fort Nelson is 360 air miles northwest of Edmonton, in the area today.

PIPER LEADS FRIENDSHIP TRAIN PARTY

By HARRY JONES
Bulletin Staff Reporter
PEACE RIVER, Sept. 28.—Are all Edmontonians from "Bonnie Scotland?" There will be little surprise around the Friendship train of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce if that is the question on the lips of residents of the entire Peace River country by Sunday.

At least the Scottish element is making the most noise. Accompanying the good-will train is Piper "Art" Miller, complete with tannish, kilt, beaver sporran and piobach.

Piper Miller is first off the train at every stop, and by the end of the tour his pipes promise to be as well known throughout the area as the friendship train itself.

Dull, Showers Forecast Here

Dull weather with possible light showers this evening was forecast for Edmonton today. The weatherman says skies will be cloudy from time to time throughout the day today and warns there may be a few light showers towards sunset.

Winds will be south at 15 mph, but temperatures will remain about the same as Monday.

Official forecast issued at 9:30 a.m. today by Edmonton Public Weather Bureau. Edmonton and valid until midnight Wednesday.

FORECAST

Edmonton region: Variable clouds today and Wednesday. A few showers tonight. Light winds. Cooler. Low tonight at Edmonton 30. High tomorrow 40.

Maintained in All Western Nations

By R. H. Shackford
PARIS, Sept. 28.—(RUP)—Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium accused Russia today of maintaining fifth columns in all western countries which made Adolf Hitler's fifth column "look like a Boy Scout organization."

Spaak's remark came in the wake of an offer by the Soviet Union to offer any oppression by Communism as it fought the Nazi attempt to impose on it another type of totalitarianism.

Don Gallinger Is Expelled From NHL

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—(CP)—The National Hockey League announced today the expulsion of Don Gallinger of the Boston Bruins who was indefinitely suspended last March 8 pending investigation of charges that he associated with gamblers.

Clarence Campbell, league president, announced Gallinger's expulsion after a hearing in which he had been given two days ago, appealing the decision and asking for a hearing before the league's board of governors.

"Mr. Campbell said: 'In view of his appeal to the league board of governors of the league against the expulsion order, the grounds upon which the order is based are not to be made public'."

Yankees Lose To Athletics

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Philadelphia's fighting A's played like champions today as they shook out of a losing slump and won the defeat dropped the Yankees 10 games behind the American League first-place Cleveland Indians who play Chicago tonight.

German Constructs Midget Submarine

HOME-MADE SUBMARINE, constructed from scrap metal by Peter Luettgens of Hamburg, Germany, is far from full-sized but builder claims he can dive to depth of 300 feet and stay down four hours. The midget craft is equipped with two searchlights for use under water. Invention has attracted a lot of attention.

Desperate Need for Roads In Peace Country Stressed

By Harry Jones
Bulletin Staff Reporter
ABOARD THE FRIENDSHIP TRAIN, Peace River, Sept. 28.—The Peace River area of Alberta is desperately in need of good roads.

This was the message brought to the Friendship train of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce Monday by civic officials, service clubs, boards of trade and chambers of commerce in towns visited on the second day's journey of the goodwill embassy.

From Hines Creek, Fairview, Grimshaw, Herry and Peace River requests of the Edmonton executive for suggestions as to how Edmonton could help the development of the north brought the same answer.

Wood's par 36, which nobody believed, gave him a 46-hole total of 182 against 184 for George Brydson of Toronto Mississauga.

Brydson was two over par with a 38 for his first nine. Wood birdied the seventh and eighth to pull in front.

Ben Clark, Vancouver, Langara, who started in a three-way tie at 146 with Wood and Brydson, took 35, the same as that for Stan Leonard of Vancouver Marine Drive, who shot a par 36.

Bob Gray, Toronto Scarborough, with a 39 for his first nine, and Pat Fletcher, Stratford, with a 72 over par tied at 186.

Thieves Get $740 in Loot

Daring thieves descended on Edmonton businesses and homes Monday night and early today to make off with $740 cash.

The haul was the largest reported in the city in several months, police said.

Largest theft occurred at the Lignun Chop Shop Parlor where $380 was stolen from an open safe early today.

Another room prowler escaped with $150 from George Makramoff, who told police the money was taken from his trousers in his hotel room.

John Medewick, of 12623 71 street, told police $175 was stolen from his sister's bedroom.

TED WILLIAMS Kids Recite Exploits Of Bal Hero

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The batting exploits of Ted Williams, Red Sox slugger out of field, known to practically every baseball fan, now are being used in Boston schools to teach children how to read.

The story of Williams is prominently displayed on the opening pages of the young America Junior, recently adopted by the school department.

School officials said the youngsters have no trouble spelling out "Ted" but some were stumbling on "Williams." However, all understood the meaning of the picture showing Ted taking a cut at the ball.

Some Bakers To Increase Price

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—(CP)—An increase in a cent a loaf in the controlled prices of bread may be the result of a new report that bakers now are prepared to authorize an increase of not more than a cent to those bakers who have not increased prices and who can demonstrate "financial need."

The action will remove an inequality, the board said.

Teachers Here for Refresher-Convention

UNIVERSAL BADGE of teachers—the inevitable piece of chalk—is put to use by H. O. Lommes, Wetaskiwin, as he marks a blackboard directing members at the Second Edmonton District Convention.

STUDENTS HOLIDAY for two days while Northern Alberta teachers attend their inter-colonial convention at Edmonton, learning new methods of instruction and re-creating school acquaintances. Occasional smiles from school ma'ams Athabasca and Madeline Singer, Edmonton.

Teachers are attending the convention at the University of Alberta, Edmonton. The convention is being held at the University of Alberta, Edmonton. The convention is being held at the University of Alberta, Edmonton.

TAKING INSTRUCTION instead of giving it are R. B. Layton, Wetaskiwin, Mrs. Margaret Hauge, Westmore and Robert Hood, Thorsby. They are among the 250 teachers attending. See story on Page 8.

TART, RIPE GRAPES GROWN IN CITY

Sunny California has nothing on Edmonton! This is the claim made by Charles W. Claxton and his 12-year-old son, Mervin, 1047 80 avenue. Basis for bold statement is a vine jam-packed with fully-ripened grapes in the Claxton backyard. This is in addition to eight apple, plum and cherry trees which, according to Mervin, "have been bearing like mad all season."

This is the first year in the Claxton memory that their grapes have ripened on the vine. Mrs. Claxton has already made several jars of jelly from them. Young Mervin brought a few bunches to The Bulletin office as proof.

The proof was a trifle tart—but nevertheless ripe and purple.

Builders Prepare Brief for Council

Desperate need for building lots in the city was stressed today at a special meeting of the executive committee of Edmonton House Builders' Association.

Forestry Man Covers 13,000 Miles In North

Just returned from a 13,000-mile lecture tour of Northern Alberta, stressing the need for conservation and fire prevention in Canadian forests, is Murray Croil, Canadian Forestry Association field representative.

A resident of Pine Falls, Manitoba, Mr. Croil covered what the CFA calls the Middle Northern tour with the aid of part-time assistant James Cook of Winnipeg, a movie projector, a public address system, a panel truck and a good, strong pair of lungs.

On the road since Aug. 16, the CFA man spoke of "dozens" of gatherings between Edmonton and the northernmost point of his trip, Puddle Prairie.

Sponsored jointly every year by the three prairie provinces and the Canadian Forestry Association, a tour, Mr. Croil said, are aimed at protecting Canada's greatest asset—her forests.

"Many years ago," he said, "a group of unselfish and private citizens, became gravely concerned with the waste and disregard meted out by the average person to reforestation."

"To combat this, these far-sighted individuals banded together with the avowed purpose of preserving this country's trees from waste and careless destruction. According to the field representative, the highlight of his trip was at Puddle Prairie, which is the old location of Mails Colony, No. 1.

"It was there that he led his 100-odd delegates to the meeting through a Cree interpreter. The man showed his film, it marked the first occasion that Puddle Prairie had seen movies at any time.

Teachers Deplore Crime 'Comics'

Juvenile Delinquency Said Caused by Publications

Crime-magazine comics and thriller magazines, obtained with little difficulty by juveniles, draw fire from 250 teachers meeting at the Second Edmonton District convention today.

Inter-colonial sessions of the convention at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, introduced by Wetaskiwin local and approved by the convention as a whole, described many of the cartoons and magazine thrillers as "fostering a wrong interest in crime and playing to small part in the growing delinquency of juveniles."

Stating that the books were offered for sale to young boys and girls, the resolution requested "censorship" rather than "stricter supervision of sales."

Language was drawn from grades 2 and 3 pupils also drew the criticism of teachers.

Teachers agreed that the books contain "incomprehensible language, lack adequate answer keys, and are printed on poor quality paper."

"They resolve to forward their complaint to the curriculum branch of the Department of Education."

Study of "Let's Write" used in Grade 2 "Writing Correctly" used in Grade 3 show words such as "sentence," "capital," "invitation," "statement," "italics," "separation" and "punctuation" are used frequently in instructions given pupils.

Teachers defeated by a small margin a resolution favoring a single provincial salary schedule when several members said the time to press for such legislation was "inopportune."

The Alberta Teacher's Association was urged by another resolution to investigate the possibility of professional expenses being deductible on teachers' income tax returns.

Three Taxi Drivers Fined for Bootlegging

Three Edmonton taxi drivers were fined $500 in city police court Monday for bootlegging.

Stirling Tole, Devon Hotel, and Edgar Phillips, 9542 162A avenue, were fined $500 each by Judge Magistrate A. F. Miller when they pleaded guilty to illegal sale of liquor. They had been remanded from Sept. 20.

The two taxi drivers were apprehended on the night of September 19 by Detectives Val Taylor and Herb Graham when Tole was observed selling a bottle of liquor to a customer for $5. Subsequent investigation implicated Phillips who was found to have supplied the liquor.

On the same ticket with Tole was Philip Miller, another taxi driver, Henrie Krokowski, 2115 82 avenue, who paid $200 and costs on a similar charge and plea.

Hales Heads Civil Service Branch Here

W. C. Hales was returned by acclamation as chairman of No. 2 branch of the Civil Service Association of Alberta at the annual meeting Monday in the Masonic Temple.

W. C. Elliott was re-elected vice-chairman. More than 200 attended and the session was largely devoted to electing delegates for the provincial convention to be held in Calgary on Nov. 5 and 6.

Eight nominees were elected to represent branch 2 in provincial executive elections at the Calgary convention as follows: J. C. McCray, Doris E. Johnson, R. D. Harard, W. C. Elliott, Adam Dobbin, A. D. Bruce, J. M. McKenlie, A. D. Doherty.

Seven others were selected as branch delegates to the provincial convention. The eight executive nominees will also serve as branch delegates.

McCray, Bruce and Miss Johnson, who served on the provincial executive in 1947, were re-elected to represent the branch at the Calgary convention. The branch agreed a resolution urging the provincial government to amend the Land Titles Act in respect to road rights. The branch seeks a five-day working week. This resolution will be submitted to the Calgary convention.

CIVIL SERVANTS' delegates to provincial convention, to be held in Calgary November 5 and 6, were elected by Edmonton Branch No. 2 Monday night, in Masonic Temple. From left are T. W. Whelan, treasurer, W. C. Hales, chairman and H. C. French, secretary.

LEGION OFFICERS EXPLAIN CHANGES

Changes in War Veterans' Pensions Act were explained to Canadian Legion South Alberta Branch officials in a recent 10-day tour by Provincial Command, President S. Carl Heckbert and first vice-president, A. D. Bruce.

The Provincial Command officials held meetings in District 5 at the following centres: Olds, Trochu, Drumheller, Glendon, Calgary and Banff.

Although the main purpose of the tour was to bring branch officers up to date on the Pensions Act, Heckbert and Gleave also urged the necessity of maintaining interest in Legion affairs generally at a high pitch.

Ald. Gleave pointed out that many veterans are unaware of recent legislative changes entitling new categories of veterans to pensions.

Little Nameless One Still in a Quandry

Hey you—who me?—yes you. That's the way the conversation goes when anyone addresses poor little nameless one.

How would you like to go through life being called, Hey you?

I don't think the boss likes me being called either, and he's doing his damndest to see that I get a suitable name—why he's even giving away $200 to you lucky people.

All you have to do to qualify is give me a name. . . a name which is suitable for a wide-awake newspaperman like me.

And if you want to get the low down on what this is all about just turn the pages of your favorite newspaper to the classified section and there you'll find all the rules and regulations.

Maurice Gauthier, our little nameless one—the advertising department, quipped me about some of the names I observed when peeking through the boss' mail the other day. I thought some of the names were just super.

Why "Dick" Thomson, our classified advertising chief, wouldn't exactly approve, and you could hardly blame him.

I don't think the boss would either. Anyhow, to all you wonderful people, I say thanks a million for the many suggestions thus far submitted.

Turn over the boss and the boys who'll judge the letters and select a suitable name for me, will encounter extreme difficulty in choosing a winner—because from my little observation the other morning, I can truthfully say there are a lot of super "handlers" for me—the nameless one.

And before I bid adieu, may I promise to sit down and give me a name? . . . just read the classified pages for all the rules and regulations.

Three Little Steamshovels and a Kid

By STAN MOHR, Editor

Three Steamshovels and a Kid

It's a fact the Three Little Steamshovels, as well as Billy, the Kid, who has done what he has done, need to make his own winning move and their own private Five-Year Plan will have gone over the top.

Three Little Steamshovels is the term affectionately hung on the trio of construction-wise men who, since just before the start of the 1944 season, have had the controlling interest in the Boston Braves. By name and official title they are, wit: President Lou Perini, Vice-President Guido Rugo and Treasurer Joe Maney.

Billy, the Kid, is, of course, Manager Billy Southworth. Almost coincident with gaining the reins of the decrepit Braves Perini and friends blew the elation on a program designed to transform the Beantowners from a saw's ear into a silk purse, so to speak.

The program promised no miracles. "We need a little time to warm this up," they warned. But they asked no other concession. And the good burghers along Beacon Street and Chestnut Hill, who hadn't known for going on 30 years what it meant to root for a National League winner, were content to wait a little longer.

The Small Money . . .

There was nothing revolutionary about the Perini, Rugo, Maney program. However, backslashed as they were, it was no great trick to lure Southworth away from his managerial job with St. Louis Cardinals and install him in the dugout at Braves field.

This done, the real thing was that the Wigwam entry was in good hands from the point of leadership.

Southworth's own first move was to go on a hunt for talent. Once again the rubber came out the bankroll as Perini and associates purchased upwards of a dozen well established major leaguers, principally from Southworth's old club, the Cards.

As a matter of fact over the first couple of seasons following the change of ownership the Braves offense were labelled "The Cape Cod Cardinals". The nickname set the management back more than $200,000 as Morton Cooper, Johnny Hopp, Johnny Beasley, Ken O'Dea, Danny Liljeholm and more stars from the English League.

"These will carry us until the scouting system works up with some younger players," was the word from headquarters. For the most part they weren't any longer of championship caliber. But collectively they gave the awakened Braves at least an air of potency.

Torgerson, Spahn, Dark et al

In the past three seasons the scouts have turned up the younger stars that finally blew the Boston to the top of the National League heap.

The bespectacled and becolorful first sacker Earl Torgerson was unearthed along the Pacific coast. Warren (The Profile) Spahn, Johnny Sain and Vern Bickford arrived to make the pitching staff. The latest rookie sensation, Shortstop Alvin Dark, prepped in the American Association. And not to get away from the earlier policy of latching on to still-useful veterans such tried athletes as Jeff Heath, Bob Elliott, Eddie Stanky, and Nels Potter are valued members of the National League kings.

Sunday it was the comparative neophyte Bickford and Potter the giants who joined forces to turn back New York Yankees and clinch the pennant for the Three Little Steamshovels and Billy, the Kid.

That one more winning move mentioned in the beginning is a triumph in the approaching World Series. If the surging Braves pull that one off the successful conclusion of the Five-Year Plan will almost certainly cause some waggling in Boston than the famed Tea Party of dim history.

Canadian Pro Tourney In 3-Way Stalemate

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament went into its third day Monday night at the half-way mark of the 72-hole championship play.

With 36-hole scores of 146 were recorded by Fred Wood and Ben Colek of Vancouver.

Wood, leader among Canadian pros at the Canadian open last week, was in front after the morning round with a one-under-par 70.

He blew his two-stroke lead in the afternoon and Brydon took over, heading Wood by one stroke after 27 holes.

Colek, a 35-year-old professional who ranked third among Canadian pros in the open, finished quickly with 74 for his 146.

The tournament with $1,000 prize money, will end with the third and fourth 18-hole rounds today. Henry Markell, Edmonton professional, is not competing. He has gone to Portland, where the Portland open gets underway later in the week.

EXCLUSIVE Hitler Blamed For Jet Plane Delay

Goering Took Responsibility
For Dr. Fuehrer's Interference

Perhaps no single factor was of more importance in determining the outcome of World War II, than the struggle in the air, for which the responsibility on the German side was taken by Marshal Hermann Goering. Today Werner Bros., German importer who was one of Goering's closest at the Nuremberg trial, reports in Goering's own words his explanation and attitude for the decline of the once invincible Luftwaffe.—EDITOR.

By Werner Bros.

Instalment VII.
Defeat of the Luftwaffe

Usually when I arrived at the interview room of the Nuremberg prison, Goering was already behind the screen waiting for me. One day I entered the prison while Goering was taking his daily exercise in the courtyard, which could be seen from the windows to the filing room, through which I had to pass. It was against the rules to look out, but I risked a glance into the courtyard, to catch a glimpse of my client in the strange world of the prison.

Goering was walking to and fro slowly, his head bowed, his arms folded. Some of the other prisoners were following him. On the same leisurely pace, only Kallenbrunner (Dr. Ernest Kallenbrunner, Deputy Chief of the German R.D.) seemed agitated. He paced furiously around the big lawn in the middle of the courtyard, taking great strides, as though someone were chasing him.

In the courtyard and on its walls stood guards armed with tommy-guns, keeping a close eye on the prisoners, for there had been rumors that some underground aviation was planning an attack—rumors which had been taken so seriously that sandbags were being set up for the guards in the corridors and the entrance was closed by an armor-plated door fitted with firing slots. Machine-guns stood on the courtyard.

SOMETHING SYMBOLIC
There was something symbolic to watch this imprisonment of the man who represented for Germany the force in the air, the force of the elements. Aviation had always remained Goering's first interest, even after he had become involved in so many other factors of the government of the Third Reich, and I gained the impression from our talks that his greatest disaffection with Hitler had been in matters which touched his air force.

"The Fuehrer had no conception of air fighting," Goering told me. "I always had a feeling he couldn't follow conceptions of movement in three dimensions. I tried in vain to explain to him what the demands of aerial combat were. . . . At one time I tried sending him some of my most successful fighter pilots to talk with him alone. They didn't make a good impression, in fact, after those three interviews, he told me that the men were no good. 'Forgive me,' my Fuehrer, I answered, 'but those are my best fighter pilots!'"

"But one of them is half Jew," said the Fuehrer, retorted. "The half-Jew," I said, "who lost half-Jewish at all, but shot down 71 enemy planes and you decorated him, yourself with the Oak Leaves and Swords. . . . Didn't like name."

"But that didn't change his attitude at all. He retired Galland because he didn't like his name. And then he retired his successor as well, a very efficient man. . . . Goering blamed Hitler's personal decisions for causing many difficulties for the air force. For instance, after a new fighter plane had been developed, Hitler suddenly insisted at the last moment that it should be armed with a millimeter cannon.

"The cannon had a very slow frequency of fire, about two shots per second. That didn't please our pilots at all. They preferred the machine-guns, which were firing at the airfields. Nobody wanted to fly them."

NEAR-DECISIVE EFFECT
One of Hitler's interferences with Luftwaffe design may have had a near-decisive effect on the outcome of the war. At least, that might be deduced from putting together two observations which Goering made long after the war.

One of them was in answer to a question: "How do you explain Germany's inferiority in the air during the second half of the war?" I asked.

"After the initial encouraging success of our new fighter tactics in the late summer of 1943," he said, "as for instance at Schweinfurt, there was a period of three months during which the enemy didn't attack as strongly as before. But then, surprisingly, they came over with long-distance fighters of very great radius of action. Sometimes they could accompany the bomber formations all the way to their destinations."

"This might have been overcome when our jet fighters had been developed, when the autohaken had been put at their disposal for landing, and when their fighting life had been increased from four hours to 48—but by then it was too late to work miracles."

PREVENTED RESULT
If the possibility is admitted that the earlier development of the jet fighter might have changed the course of the war, then it could be argued from another statement of Goering's that Hitler himself prevented that result—for it was his theories which slowed up work on the jet plane, although they were also his idea.

"From 1942 on," Goering explained, "the Fuehrer, practically unaided, decided the direction German armaments production

WARTIME HOUSING UNDER FIRE

Contractors to Fight Gov't House-Building

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—(CP)—Contractors will fight any further effort to make housing a public utility," George Prudham of the National House Builders' Association and the Toronto Metropolitan House Builders' Association, discussed ways to end bottlenecks in supplies and to stem the rise in building costs. Mr. Prudham is president of the national body.

Discussing "public housing" operations, Mr. Prudham said: "I think the people of Canada have had enough of it and can readily be sold on the advantages of private enterprise. The government can't take us any further along the road of nationalization than public opinion will permit."

He added that through this very action, the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has added about $40 to the cost of every house that will be built in western Canada. And it pours the same increase will apply in the east.

From "War-time Housing" for cars of lumber at $12.50 over the list," he added.

Again and again he blocked a fleet air arm, especially the creation of a naval reconnaissance service. The Navy pointed out in vain that effective reconnaissance at sea could only be carried out by men who were sailors first and pilots afterwards, for the Luftwaffe officers whom Goering assigned the work with the Navy were sources of constant error, as when identified a British destroyer lying off the coast of Norway as a battleship.

Lack of sufficient air reconnaissance also hampered the U-boat campaign and was considered by the Navy a decisive factor in its failure.

Again, when Goering learned that the Navy had laid mines with planes, he issued orders forbidding the Navy to do that again. He also forced the fleet to give up the use of torpedo planes after it had scored initial successes with this weapon.

EXAGGERATED ESTIMATE
Goering's insistence on keeping all air power in the hands of his Luftwaffe was accompanied by an exaggerated estimate of its power. He had boasted that he would keep the skies over the English Channel free of British planes for a few days, and preparations for naval action were therefore kept at a minimum in the expectation that he would do so.

According to other defendants, it was largely the situation in the air which caused the abandonment of the plans to invade England (which Goering had once told me was due to the personal desire of Hitler to go easy on the British, which he professed not to understand).

Some of Goering's colleagues in the Luftwaffe were therefore kept at a minimum in the expectation that he would do so.

Three-Way Contest In Algonia By-Election

WALFORD, Ont., Sept. 28.—(CP)—A three-way contest in the Oct. 25 Algonia East federal by-election was measured last night by the nomination of Lorne D. Callahan of Sault Ste. Marie as the CCF candidate.

Senator Bouchard Blind, Retiring From Newspaper

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—(CP)—Senator T. D. Bouchard, vigorous opponent of extreme French-Canadian nationalism, revealed during the weekend that he had become blind and was retiring from newspaper work after 50 years.

The 67-year-old senator made the disclosure in an article in Le Clarion, the weekly newspaper he publishes at St. Hyacinthe, Que. He added: "I am blind, but I am not a cripple. I am still a member of the Quebec legislature and a minister in the Acheson and Godbout governments. He often came into conflict with political and social groups in the province."

He will oppose External Affairs Minister Pearson and John J. Fitzgerald, president of the Social Credit League of Ontario.

Mr. Callahan, who lost out in a bid for a provincial seat in the Ontario June 7 election, was named tonight at a CCF meeting in this village, central point in the riding. He won out on a ballot vote over Jacques of Blind River.

Mr. Fitzgerald's nomination was announced earlier yesterday after meetings held by the Social Credit League in the four largest towns in the constituency. He was one-time secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade and now is in the lumbering business at Blind River.

The Progressive Conservative party announced earlier it would not contest the seat. Mr. Pearson recently was appointed to the ministry post after years in the diplomatic service and the seat became open through the elevation of Thomas Farquhar, Liberal, to the senate.

TIME MEANS NOTHING MUCH TO THESE BOYS

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 28.—(CP)—If Junior thinks those sums are tough, it could be worse.

A report submitted here contained more than 20 volumes of mathematical tables, each containing 500,000 separate calculations.

It took a committee 77 years to assemble the figures, but they loved doing it.

"We're never happy if anything's figures will still be accurate in 1,000 years. But they're going right on, assembling bigger and better tables."

Formed in 1871 to correct errors found in earlier mathematical tables, the committee says its figures will still be accurate in 1,000 years. But they're going right on, assembling bigger and better tables.

Bacon Cookery Best In New Broilerette

By Ben Thrifty

Smell that bacon frying, just sizzling in the pan... and with bacon the tremendous price it is these days, we like to do our very best by it in the cooking end of things.

Gratty idea is to use the new broilerettes. They consist of a round pan 1 1/2 inches deep and about 11 inches in diameter, with a fitted rack sitting 1/4-inch from the bottom.

Your bacon will cook, the melting fat draining off as it cooks. Bacon at its best is a broiler of grease. The broilerettes can be bought at $1.15 per pair, and also do wonderful things for sausage, chops and other fatty meats.

Remember those fetching Hamlet figures... the Alpine boy again?

Well they're back with new life, new color and new prices. There's a love of a little boy, sitting on a fence nonchalantly whistling... for 14th 11th playmate, the sweet little girl is in another with a tiny basket of flowers. There are also the two holding hands as if walking in wonderland in a beautiful forest.

Plastic has crept into the realm of Devon pottery. This is evidently a good thing. The plastic is durable.

Tomatoes are swarming up the price scale. There are quantities available at the low pounds for 25c rate. But get any in top-notch condition at this price. You'll find your own saying 15c and even 20c. If you aren't judicious in your shopping.

In the gadget department I chanced upon an excellent grapefruit corer for 25c. There's a bevy of interesting cookie cutters, Hamlet and Gretel characters... complete with the old witch and her dead son. ... and rabbit, puppy cats... each at 30c per.

Try them for little Sally's birthday party next week.

Pimentas are round and about for 40c per pound. You can do much wonderful things with pimentas can't you?

Snuggledown sleepers for the littlest little are cute 'n' soft as a bunny's ear. I found one while bargain basement buying... for $1.69.

There's a winsome bunny embroidered on the pocket, too.

Is there anything more maddening than to find your bottle of ginger ale deflated after a brief sojourn in the fridge?

Solution to this is a handy bottle cap and opener. The cap is guaranteed to keep the "fizz" inside.

Shrewd Play Nets Overlook Here

By William E. Kennedy

During the world championship mixed team-of-four contest at Chicago, I was sitting with Virginia Harms and William McGee of that city, when board No. 56 came to their table. McGee had a great deal to do with bringing the national tournament back to Chicago, and he is one of the fine card players of the Midwest.

The development of the play on this hand by Mrs. Harms was interesting. The bidding given in exactly as it occurred at the table.

On the opening lead of the nine of hearts, the ten was played from dummy and East covered with the king. Mrs. Harms won the trick and led the eight of hearts.

West played low and declarer went up with dummy's queen, came back with the five of spades, putting on the jack from her hand and West winning.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—
Self-Made Man Good
Marriage Prospect

DEAR MISS DIX—Is it right to condemn a man on account of his family? My daughter and a young man are deeply in love with each other, but all of my family and friends disapprove of him because he comes from the wrong side of the tracks.

He left his family five years ago to better himself, which has done so well he is now holding a fine job. He is all my husband and I would want in a son.

What is your advice?

A MOTHER ANSWER: If the young man is all you say, I would marry him on the spot, because I would be afraid that some other girl would get him away from my daughter.

Don't ever disparage a self-made man, because they are the men who make such a good job of themselves.

WHY GROW OLD

Results of Exercises Add to General Beauty

By Josephine Lowman

They say that if you tell a big enough lie long enough people will finally believe you. However, if you hammer away at a startling truth for a long time they finally pay no attention to you. Women have read and heard so much about exercise that some of them may have become "numb" so far as the exercise idea is concerned.

I do not wish to become like the sea to my readers, pounding away about exercise with such regularity that they pay no attention to the sound of my typewriter. My only problem is getting women to exercise for once they do, the lovely results are so satisfying that they will continue.

I have a theory that many women do not exercise because they do not know which exercises to take and are bewildered because there are so many of them recommended. With this in mind, some today I prepared a perfect daily routine for you.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Thumb Sucking Now Thought Natural

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Parents are familiar with the soothing thought that they need not attack the baby's thumb sucking as if it were a deadly habit not to be endured.

Thumb-sucking, or the prolonged use of the feeding bottle or any other of the forms which persistent sucking habits take, is now considered to be a natural instinct needing gratification.

It is not only a means of getting food, but it gives him a feeling of security and relaxation and he uses it to promote these emotions.

When a child feels that he is not loved, when he is tyrannized over by brothers or sisters, in a period of fatigue or illness, the early satisfactions of the thumb become paramount again and the child uses it as a comforter.

Ordinarily if his sucking desires are not frustrated in infancy and he is allowed to outgrow them naturally, he should not need or demand such comforts after he is two or three years of age.

But, if he is denied his thumb, or punishment is used to frustrate him, his emotional difficulties are not resolved, and he is denied the opportunity of a smooth childhood.

In such case he will be determined to have it. If he becomes increasingly impatient, and he will turn to other avenues of gratification such as the sleeves of his pajamas, a rag in his mouth, the end of a blanket.

There has been a great deal of work, study and research done on sucking habits in general, to determine if unbroken sucking habits alter the shape of the mouth permanently.

The consensus is that they do not. If teeth are out of line, there are other reasons, poor diet, heredity, lack of vitamin D which, alone, or accompanied by thumb-sucking, can lead to such a condition. It is too easy to blame everything upon this particular habit.

Our leaflet No. 30 "Thumb-Sucking," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Orkus-Etzikorn Vows Pledged

Baskets of pastel gaily decorated Holy Trinity Church for the recent wedding of Audrey Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Etzkorn, of Edmonton, and John Orkus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Orkus, of Edmonton.

Rev. W. M. Naibay performed the ceremony.

For her wedding, the bride chose a suit of pearl grey gabardine, pink velvet hair hat, pink accessories and a corsage of pink orchids. As her jewelry, she wore a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

A matron of honor, Mrs. Kenneth Etzkorn, wore a frock of figured crepe in black and yellow, black picture hat and corsage of red roses.

Kenneth Etzkorn was best man. Herbert Wild played the wedding music.

Receiving at a reception following the ceremony at the Windsor Tea Room were the mother of the bride and the mother of the groom, Mrs. Orkus, Mrs. Etzkorn and Mrs. Naibay.

Tall white tapers and vases of sweet pink lilies decorated the wedding cake, embossed in tulle and pink ribbons.

Dr. W. E. Adair proposed the toast to the bride.

For a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and Seattle, the bride wore a pink and green figured jersey dress with green accessories, topped by a brown Barthes coat. Corsage of Sweetheart roses completed her ensemble.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 1448 24th street, Edmonton.

STOCKHOLM—(UPI)—A troupe of 320 Swedish gymnasts recently returned home after a 1,000-mile journey.

The trip was undertaken on the invitation of the British Gymnastic League, which recently observed its 25th anniversary.

It's Procter & Gamble's postwar TIDE

It does what's never been done before.

It's TIDE

... you've never used anything like it!

TIDE does what's never been done before—washes clothes cleaner than any soap, yet leaves clothes brighter! It's a true washday miracle, made possible through wartime research. You'll know you're using a completely NEW product the minute you make suds with Tide. Tide suds look different, feel different... and those wonder suds just laugh at hard water! Even in hardest water they billow up so thick and fast you'll be amazed!

ONLY Tide DOES ALL FOUR!

1. Washes clothes cleaner!
Yes, cleaner than any soap made! You'll get a real washday thrill when you use your first Tide wash. Everything comes cleaner—even grimy play clothes and heavily soiled work clothes. That's because Tide not only leaves clothes free from ordinary dirt, but actually removes dingy soap suds as well!

2. Color brightly perks up colors!
Actual brightness goes up like magic as Tide makes dulling soap film disappear. Washable prints and pastels actually come out brighter with Tide! Tide is really safe for your dainty washable colors.

3. Never "yellows" white things!
What a blessing for your shirts, sheets, and pillowcases! No matter how often you wash them, no matter how long you store them, Tide can't turn them yellow!

4. Gives more suds—
Prove it in your dishpan!
Kind-to-hands suds! Faster suds! Longer-lasting suds than any soap in hardest water! Tide suds are like magic... washes dishes cleaner than any soap! No suds in the water! No greasy ring round the pan! No cloudy film on dishes and glasses! That's why they rinse and dry so sparkling clear—even without wiping!

TIDE'S IN-DIRT'S OUT!
